DIRECTOR: ANN KANEKO

NOV 4 - 28 | ONLINE

Beginning in Payahuunadū ("the land of flowing water"), also known as Owens Valley, director Ann Kaneko lights the colonial legacy of injustice shared at the site of Manzanar. This documentary is a contentious memorial to the internment of Japanese Americans and the little known grounds where indigenous communities have fought for their rights to the lands and water that sustain them. Poetically weaving memories of Native Americans, Japanese American WWII incarcerated, and environmentalists, this film is an embodiment of solidarity you will not want to miss.

Julie is not what you'd call a committed person. When we first meet her, she's on the cusp of her 30th birthday, about to switch her college major, and on the verge of leaving her long-term boyfriend. We soon learn that life-altering changes of heart are among the few constants in her life and, if she seems a tad frustrating at first, we soon come to admire her ornery resistance to being defined - even if that resistance costs her dearly.

SPOTLIGHT ON JAPAN

DIRECTOR: TAKUMI SAITOH, NAOTO TAKENAKA, TAKAYUKI YAMADA

NOV 4 - 28 | ONLINE

Based on several short stories by manga artist Hiroyuki Ohashi and co-directed by Takumi Saitoh, Naoto Takenaka, and Takayuki Yamada, ZOKKI is difficult to categorize, best described as an off-beat comedy from Japan that interweaves five stories into an intelligent yet often-absurd cohesive whole. All of the stories deal with ways in which loneliness can manifest itself into deception, including self-deception. By the end, these disparate narratives indeed collide into a satisfying conclusion.
